Spring 2021

Online tutorials beginning March 9th followed by a live interactive seminar (April 9, 2021)

Workshop presenter: Gilles Bousquet

Basic Description

This workshop offers important practical learning outcomes for PFMP students preparing for internships and the job market in international education. Workshop participants will be introduced to current best practices in international education through case studies and other hands-on, skills-based activities. Key workshop concepts include international education as a professional field, internationalization of the campus and curriculum, diversity and inclusion in international education, leadership and professional development, and intercultural learning and global competence.

Learning Outcomes

All participants finishing this workshop will have a better understanding of how to:

- identify and understand the major themes, issues and debates in international education today
- identify major theoretical underpinnings of intercultural learning
- understand the interface between concepts, issues, and practice in international higher education
- articulate the value of international education as a professional field and career path
- articulate practical solutions to problems raised in actual case students in international education
- name and describe key professional organizations and competencies and potential roles for aspiring leaders in international higher education
- create a Leadership Action Plan
